

Privacy policy Mision-Adulam

Contact with you is precious to us; thus we also consider it of great importance to handle your personal information in a correct manner. To safeguard this we have stipulated the following points concerning the handling of personal information in our procedures:

- Address information is solely collected by us with the goal to share information about the work of Mission Adulam in Bolivia or having contact with you concerning this.
- All information which we have, was given to us voluntarily on a personal basis.
- The address details (both postal addresses as well as e-mail) are under no circumstances given to a third party or used for other purposes.
- We save this information on a protected computer and use equally secure software for mailings.
- We will safeguard as much as in our power that no-one can access this information.
- In all correspondence you will find an address so that at any time you can ask to opt out of the newsletters.
- As soon as you let us know we can no longer use your personal information we will remove this from our database.
- You can always read this again on our website, the privacy policy of AVAIL and MailChimp as well as the GDPR Agreement of Foundations for Missions you can read on their own websites.
